cattle were as scarce as ever, and as there was a fair Eastern and export demand for that description, the advantage remained with holders. They were in a position to get fully previous figures for anything upon which shippers looked with favor, while for especially desirable lots it was possible to squeeze on 5@10c. The quality averaged poorer perhaps than at any time during the season. Not a lot of strictly choice animals was offered, and the number that could be classed as good was comprised in a very few car-loads. The supply of poor native steers was also much smaller than usual, the great bulk of the receipts consisting of Westerns and Texans. Central which moved up to 46). The best prices of the day were current about 2 o'clock, but before delivery hour the market began to weaken on heavy sales of coal shares. Jersey Central dropped 2 per cent, to 44; Reading 14, to 23, and Lackawanna 13, to 1053. The decline was due to the bear raid, reports being circulated that the Jersey Central lease to Reading had been broken. Later on President Little of the Jersey Central, denied the report and stated that the rental had been paid to date, and the relations of the road condate, and the relations of the road condate. port cattle were offered, and as shippers had but a small number to select from their purchases were no essarily light, though there was a very good demand.
